

Problem statement:

As a USC student trying to find classes, it is hard to find the exact location of buildings and classrooms.

Details:

The popular maps services (Google maps, Apple maps) often struggle to give the correct locations and entrances of classroom buildings. On top of that, finding the correct classrooms can take circling through the building 2 or 3 times before you find the room you are looking for. When new semesters begin, an app built specifically for USC students to find their buildings and classrooms would save lots of confusion.
